

'James Balmforth: Waypoints' at Robilant+Voena, Milan

BY LAURA PONTI | OCTOBER 28, 2016

A solo exhibition titled “Waypoints” organized in collaboration with Hannah Barry Gallery, showcasing works crafted by contemporary British sculptor James Balmforth, is on view at Robilant+Voena gallery in Milan and will run through November 18, 2016. James Balmforth is best known for his attempts at commemorating the procedure and accomplishment of a varied sort of constituents, which he employs by means of extremely cutting-edge and pioneering techniques. The outcome turns out to be a body of work that probes our comprehension of substantial reality and examines the objective confines and chemical elements of his selected medium.

The exhibition is on view at Robilant+Voena, Via Fontana 16, 20122 Milan.